Tasting Notes

Tasting notes are for current vintage, if vintage is noted. If vintage is not noted, tasting notes are to the general style of the winemaker.

When a tasting note mentions body (i.e full-bodied, medium, light) they are describing the weight of the wine in your mouth. Think of it like milk: a light bodied wine would be similar to skim milk, whereas a full-bodied wine would be like 2% or half-and-half.

Sometimes we borrow notes direct from the producer, sometimes we give you our own spin. Take the time to taste and use our notes as a preliminary filter.

Pairing Wine with Food

- Match weight with weight. Rich food? Big Wine
- Match food origin to wine origin: Italian food? Italian wine
- If the dish is better with a squeeze of lemon, look for acidic wine
- Sauvignon Blanc is very food friendly, and especially good with fresh vegetables, spicy food, most cheeses and a counter to rich sauces.
- Breakfast and Brunch are difficult to pair, Riesling is your best bet with eggs.
- Our Hickory Brisket pairs exceptionally well with zinfandel. If you like light-bodied reds, a pinot noir will be best, and can double pair with grilled salmon.
- Sweet dessert? Find an even-sweeter (or, at minimum, equally sweet) wine

Confused? Give us a price point and we'll put together a fabulous selection for your guests. Clients are only billed for wine that is consumed, by the bottle.

Pricing changes monthly. Please inquire for updated pricing.

Champagne | Sparkling

I drink champagne when I'm happy and when I'm sad. Sometimes I drink it when I'm alone. When I have company I consider it obligatory. I trifle with it if I'm not hungry and drink it when I am. Otherwise I never touch it - unless I'm thirsty.
